American Steel and Wire, Manhattan and Metropolitan Street Railway. The changes in most of the standard railway issues were limited and insignificant. The pressure upon the local traction issues again reflected the character of the bids that were made yesterday to the rapid transit commission for the construction of the underground railway.

There was nothing that was new bearing upon the more extensive fluctuations in the industrial quarter or upon other particular movements in the market. As was the case yesterday, active trading was held in restraint by the common expectation that a decisive battle in South Africa is immigent, and there was a general inis imminent, and there was a general in disposition to make new ventures pending the receipt of information as to the outcome. The local situation of itself examprises nothing of any importance bearing

Hardly more than half the list had beer traded in at 12 o'clock. Both the bulls are the bears are alraid to take any active step for fear that their efforts will be frustrated by news from South Africa of one kind or another. The British-Boer war is still the most important influence in shaping the tenor of the market.

As to the general market, careful financial people state that the money situation will improve during the entire month, as far as can be judged. The outlook for this week's bank statement is exceedingly bright. The subtreasury was debtor to the banks yesterday, for the one day alone, $2.000.000 or more. Indications all point to a continuance of this movement.

in addition to this, large sums are being Franklin.... Franklin.... The effect of Metropolitan.

this is seen in the ease of call money rates, which remain constantly below the legal rate, and seem likely to get as low as 3 or 4 per cent shortly. Tight money has been the chief argument of the bears against the likelihood of higher prices, and it will be seen that except for the South African situation the effect of such easy morey would already have been a boom in the market.

News is scarce and unimportant and little attention is paid to it. Great secrecy is observed A Delegation From the Island to Apabout everything concerning the conference. Manager McGraw said: "I am only sengers who arrived this morning on the an outsider and not one of the promoters Red D Line steamship Philadelphia from of the new league, but I am looking out for my own interests. I expect to attend nine merchants and business men of Porto the New York meeting of the new league Rico who are en route to Washington to to obtain information, if nothing else. I consult with President McKinley and to believe the National League next sease lay matters before Congress concerning will consist of eight clubs." Captain Wilbert Robinson was as confident as Manager McGraw that there would be but eight clubs in the league next season. He thinks there need be no fear of a failure of financial backing to a new club in Baltimore. He also agreed with McGraw that it was a vain delusion to suppose that the new association would keep pace with the old, or that it would respect the reserve rule.

Manager Hanlon promptly declared that he was totally ignorant of the course of events, because he did not bother himself about the matter. He unbesomed himself "I have not been informed of what is going on in league councils, but still believe hat next season will again see a twelve-club circuit. I have a price in my mind, and the Baltimore club can be bought if the price is forthcoming.'
